The decree issued in the fifty-two year of Emperor Kangxi's reign on conferring the title upon the Fifth Panchen reads: "His Majesty the Emperor, who reigns by the mandate of Heaven, decrees: I treat all with equality and rule the Empire with benevolence. I have always granted official posts and conferred titles upon those who abide by Buddhist disciplines and monastic rules and study doctrines assiduously. In your former life, you firmly abided by rules, proceeded with caution and expounded Buddhist doctrines. Today, in accordance with protocols, you are again reverently presenting tributes to express your loyalty to the Court. I hereby confer upon you the title of "Panchen Erdeni" and bestow upon you a seal and an album. You may now take charge of the Tashilhunpo (bKra-shis-lhun-po) Monastery and all other monasteries under its jurisdiction and their estates. No one shall be allowed to forcibly occupy or seize them. In that case, monks can live there in eternal peace. You should also continue to observe Buddhist disciplines, expound Buddhist doctrines and educate monks and disciples so that all of them will behave properly and work diligently at self-perfection.
